

Wait for me

My future husband

I'm out there, if you search for me.

You won't find me trolling in a bar or swiping in an app. You won't recognize me by the height of my hem line or the depth of my cleavage.

I'll be the one who softens your heart and makes you feel safe to open it up. I'll be the one who heals the hole others left raw and empty.

I'll be your partner – in good times and in bad, in sickness and in health. The warm body in your bed. The lover you desire.

I'll be the one who grows old with you. The one who holds your hand until the end.

I believe you'll find me, if you follow the true path. If you're determined and you never give up. And I believe you're preparing a home for me, in your heart. That you're making yourself worthy of the calling. That you're setting aside all others, purifying your mind, and living your vows in anticipation.

I don't need to be rescued, but I do need you to be strong, because things won't always be painless. I won't be demanding, but life will be.

I'm not easy, but I'm worth it.

Wait for me. I'm waiting for you.

My future wife

I'm out there, searching for you.

You don't have to change a thing for me, I desire you just the way you are. Be the best version of yourself and that will draw me to you.

I'll be the one who protects your heart and provides for your needs. I'll be the one who wants what's best for you, without regard for what you do for me.

I'll be your companion – to love you and to honor you all the days of my life. With only eyes for you and indisputable loyalty.

I'll be by your side – with grey hair and wrinkles – on that long walk home.

And I believe we'll be together soon, if we ignore those who offer cheap imitations. If we reject the culture telling us to enter through the wide gate that leads to destruction. If we hold tight to the truth of our calling. If we treat our bodies like they're already promised to someone.

I'm not perfect. I won't be the most successful or the wealthiest or the strongest. I'll fail at times, but I'm determined to never give up on us.

Because you're worth it.

Wait for me. I'm waiting for you.